INVITATION

The Town of Rye's African American Cemetery Committee invites you to participate in a Memorial Day ceremony to remember and honor those buried at the Cemetery.

10am, Saturday, May 26, 2012
215 North Street, Rye
(adjacent to the Greenwood Union Cemetery)

As brief background, the land for the cemetery was donated to the Town of Rye in 1860 by Underhill and Elizabeth Halstead with the condition that it "...shall forever hereafter kept, held and used for the purpose of a cemetery or burial place for the colored inhabitants of the said Town of Rye, and its vicinity..."

Records show that burials, especially of war veterans, took place from 1860 to 1964.

In 2002 a list was compiled showing that 119 persons were buried at the cemetery:
15 Civil War veterans, 1 Spanish American War veteran,
5 World War I veterans, 1 World War II veteran, and 97 "civilians"

The importance of this special cemetery in the history of our community and our nation has been recognized.

It is listed on the National, New York State and Westchester County Registers of Historic Places.

Subject: ANIMAL CONTROL/SUMMER CAMP PREPARATIONS

As you will recall, during the summer of 2010 the City of Rye experienced highly unusual activity by coyotes. At that time, we made certain recommendations to the organizations that manage summer camps within the community, and we appreciate the steps all of you who sponsored camps or other summer programs took to enhance the safety of our children.

During 2011 and thus far in 2012, we have not experienced aggressive or abnormal coyote behavior, and we sincerely hope that remains the case. However, interaction with wildlife is increasingly a part of living in suburbia, and increased numbers of coyote sightings during the spring and early summer months are likely. Therefore, we believe it would be wise for any of you who are sponsoring camps or similar programs to continue to implement some of the same precautions that were employed by summer camps during 2010 and 2011, such as:

- Discussing with campers what to do if they confront a wild animal
- Establishing procedures to be followed if an animal is seen in the vicinity of a camp
- Equipping counselors with whistles or other sound-producing devices
- Making air horns available to counselors, group leaders, or supervisors
- Ensuring that the police are notified of sightings or unusual activity.

I have attached copies of the City of Rye's "Coyote Fact Sheet" and a poster prepared by the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation, both of which are available on the City of Rye website. We also have a limited supply of larger, laminated posters. If you require additional posters, please feel free to contact me either at the above telephone number or by email at wconnors@ryepd.ryeny.gov.

I thank you in advance for your assistance and cooperation, and look forward to a safe and enjoyable summer camp season.

Police Commissioner

CITY OF RYE FACT SHEET RE: COYOTES

Residents of Rye take great pride in the natural endowments of our community: one-fifth of the City's land is dedicated to recreation and conservation. It is important to remember that we share these areas with the animals that inhabit them; a variety of animals are found within our community, including deer, fox, rabbits, raccoons, and coyotes.

Coyotes are hunters, and primarily feed on rodents, insects, and small animals, including rabbits, squirrels, and small deer. They are normally timid around humans, but some coyotes in suburban areas have lost their fear of people, which can be dangerous. It is important to act aggressively to maintain that natural fear.

WHAT YOU SHOULD DO:

- If you encounter a coyote, be aggressive. Loud noises and forceful behavior will normally scare the animal away. Wave your arms and throw sticks or stones.
- Do not feed coyotes.
- Do not provide food sources that may attract them, such as outdoor pet food or bird seed. They may be attracted by the birds and rodents drawn to bird feeders.
- Make garbage inaccessible.
- Do not allow pets to run free. Coyotes can see cats or small dogs as prey (coyotes' average weight is 35 pounds; they will usually yield their territory to mid-sized or larger dogs). Conflicts are most frequent in March and April, when coyotes are establishing their dens.
- Small children should be supervised by an adult while outdoors.

Coyote attacks on humans can happen, although they are rare (for example, in an average year in New York State, 650 people are hospitalized and one killed in dog attacks, vs. a handful of coyote attacks nationwide). The mere presence of coyotes in our community is part of the ecology of the area, and not dangerous in itself; however, the animals' behavior should be monitored to ensure that they are not acting dangerously or aggressively, or exhibiting a lack of fear.

Unusual coyote behavior should be reported to the City of Rye Police Department at (914) 967-1234 so sightings can be recorded and officers dispatched if necessary. Attacks or emergency situations should be reported via 911.

Additional information on coyotes can be found on the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation's website, <http://www.dec.ny.gov/animals/6971.html>

What Should I Do When I Encounter a Coyote?

Seeing a coyote is not a bad thing. Often, hikers, hunters, bird watchers, etc, will encounter coyotes in the field simply because their activities put them in places that coyotes call home. However, to reduce the likelihood of bad interactions with coyotes, the simple answer to the question "what should I do when I see a coyote?" is to make it fear you. This is especially important when we see coyotes in areas that are commonly used by people, especially children, such as parks, playgrounds, and schoolyards. We cannot change the fact that coyotes do exist, and will continue to exist in suburban and urban areas. We can, however, condition them to not want to encounter people. Here are a couple of techniques that may help with this. Keep in mind that not all of these techniques instill fear in coyotes, but simply disturb or annoy them in hopes of discouraging them from hanging around a particular area.

- Sound an air horn
- Spray the coyote with a hose
- Use visual and/or auditory scare devices - A number of products exist that use a motion sensor to activate a spot light and radio or some other noise intended to chase off undesired animals.
- Yell, wave your arms, and make yourself look big and scary - Use body language to reinforce your aggression. Make sure that your voice and body language are as aggressive as possible. Taking a step or making a quick, sudden movement toward the coyote can make this approach more effective.
- Throw rocks or sticks
- Spray with pepper spray - This is a last resort approach and is designed more to discourage or stop an attack.

In the case of an attack, fight back! Kick, Punch, Poke

Make sure to target sensitive areas such as the eyes, nose, and throat. A large prey item that fights back is not a desirable target for a coyote. Make sure children have a plan that involves the aggression tactics described above in case they have an encounter with a coyote. Small children should be supervised and told to yell out "coyote" repeatedly until an adult responds.

Report an attack to your local police agency immediately. Follow up with a call to DEC so that we, in conjunction with local law enforcement can act accordingly. Contact your New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) Region 3 Wildlife Office at (845)256-3098 to report any other undesirable interactions with coyotes.

Dear Community Partner(s);

I am writing to inform you about a new Crisis Prevention and Response Team (CPRT) that has been added to Westchester County's rich array of services for those experiencing a psychiatric or emotional crisis in the community. The Westchester County Department of Community Mental Health has partnered with St. Vincent's Hospital Westchester, A Division of St. Joseph's Medical Center, to deliver quality services to those in crisis or nearing a crisis with a strong focus on prevention. The team is also available to provide education and skills training to those who can help manage, and ultimately, prevent crises.

You will find enclosed a flyer and magnet with specific information about the team and how it operates. Please contact them directly with questions and feel free to make copies of the flyer for distribution to the general public.

We understand the impact that your services have on the lives of so many in our communities and hope that you will utilize the CPRT as a resource and/or encourage those you come in contact with to call the team as needed.

Sincerely,

Grant Mitchell, MD

Mobile Response Monday-Friday 9 a.m.— 6 p.m.

Who We Are

The Crisis Prevention and Response Team (CPRT) is an interdisciplinary mobile team of mental health professionals (social workers, a child and family specialist and a psychiatrist). The CPRT responds to people in the community, usually visiting them at home, although they can be seen elsewhere as well. The team has offices at Saint Joseph's Medical Center in Yonkers and at St. Vincent's Hospital in Harrison.

Who We Serve

The CPRT serves any person in Westchester who is experiencing, or is at risk of, a psychological crisis, and who requires mental health intervention. Links to other community resources and to follow up support are provided as well. The CPRT is usually called by individuals, family members, neighbors, friends, landlords, clergy, school personnel, police or other person(s) concerned about an individual.

What We Do

CPRT staff provide a range of services including assessment, crisis intervention, supportive counseling, information and referrals, linkage with appropriate community based mental health services for ongoing treatment, and follow up. The Team's goal is to help people avoid crises and to prevent visits to emergency rooms.
